FEATURED MINOR OF THE MONTH:
Library and Information Science

The Library and Information Science (LIS) minor is advised by Laura Owen of the School of Information in SBS. Laura says that students would find the LIS minor to be a great fit if they are interested in E-Society but want to focus on specific skills that relate to digital archiving and publishing, and work in places like libraries and museums. It pairs well with the COMM major because it focuses on digital communication in the library, museum, publishing, or information-rich-environment fields.

The LIS Minor is 18 total units. 12 units are required minor core courses and 6 units are from LIS minor electives.

A course to highlight that is available in spring 2019 is LIS 417: Introduction to Digital Cultures.

Any major advisor can declare the LIS minor, although students are encouraged to contact Laura with any questions at lauraowen@email.arizona.edu
